

Stylemaster Panels Celebrates 50 Years

In 1959, when Stylemaster Panels commenced business, the Prime Minister was Robert Menzies, the population was half what it is now and Jack Brabham won the Formula One Driver's Championship.

Fifty years later, Philip Stewart, the Managing Director of prestige motor body repairer Stylemaster, is celebrating the company's golden anniversary.

"Stylemaster was established by my father, Keith Stewart, and in those days the business was located in Burwood Road, Hawthorn.

"We moved into our current site in 1972 and through the acquisition of next-door premises, have expanded the facility to 1500 square metres," Philip said.

Stylemaster continues its successful path, employing sixteen staff and recently upgrading its facilities and equipment to the latest technology at a cost of more than $1,000,000.

"Improvements to the business reinforce our philosophy, 'you fix it once and you fix it right!' We will continue to make improvements for the benefit of our clients," he said.

The site at 85 Murphy Street, Richmond has undergone extensive renovations with the consolidation of adjoining properties, 81 and 83 Murphy Street.

Architects Greenway Hirst Page and builders BuildQ transformed the premises to create a dynamic, attractive and productive environment.

"The Stewart family and the rest of the team at Stylemaster look forward to the next 50 years and delivering the highest level of service to our customers," Philip added.
